

AUDITOR WAITING ON LIBRARY LEVY

Board Gives Notice That Mandamus Proceedings Will be Instituted For Increase.

NO ACTION HAS BEEN TAKEN

Work on Tax Duplicate for City of Seymour is Temporarily Delayed Until Question is Settled.

The tax duplicate for the city of Seymour is being held up because of the notice filed some time ago by the library board asking for an increase levy for that institution. Several weeks ago while the question of the tax levy for the city was before the council, the board filed a notice with the city clerk demanding that the levy be increased from 4 cents to 6 cents on the $100. The request was made under the state law which gives the library board the right to fix the levy for that purpose.

The council paid no heed to the notice however, and proceeded upon the theory that the library in this city would not come within the law as the library was the gift of Andrew Carnegie and was built upon the condition that the city pay at least $1,000 a year to maintain it. The library board holds that the library is governed by the state law and that the city council can only accept the levy which is fixed by the board. Mayor Swope vetoed the levy as passed by the council for the coming year, and the present levy of $1.16 will be in force. Under this levy the library will receive 4 cents on the $100.

The matter has now passed out of the hands of the council and the work on the tax duplicate would have begun several days ago had not the library board informed the county auditor the mandamus proceedings would be instituted for the increase levy. The county auditor and his clerks have completed the tax duplicates for all the corporations except Salt Creek and the city of Seymour. The former is now being prepared, but the work on the latter is withheld until the question is decided. The library board has given notice that mandamus proceedings will be instituted, but as yet no such steps have been taken.

The county auditor is desirous of having the question finally determined as soon as possible, as many inquiries are being made as to what the levy will be for this city, but he is unable to give the final answer as matters now stand.

A large amount of work is required to complete the duplicate and if the work is done before the increase is made, it would be necessary to make out a new duplicate or alter many of the figures on the old duplicate. If the increase is not made, the levy for Seymour will likely be $1.19, which is a slight increase over that of last year.

The jury took the case about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and deliberated all night and today. It is reported that the jury stood eight to four, but it is not known how the vote is divided. FUNERAL OF CHAS. BALL HELD TO-DAY

Former Brownstown Man Committed Suicide at Alexandria By Drinking Carbolic Acid.

DIED IN FIFTEEN MINUTES

Domestic Trouble Said to Have Been Cause of the Deed—Was Well Known at Brownstown.

The funeral services of the late Charles Ball, who committed suicide at Alexandria, Monday night, were conducted this afternoon from the Christian church at Brownstown, by the Rev. D. L. Milligan. The remains were shipped from Alexandria Tuesday and arrived at Brownstown early this morning.

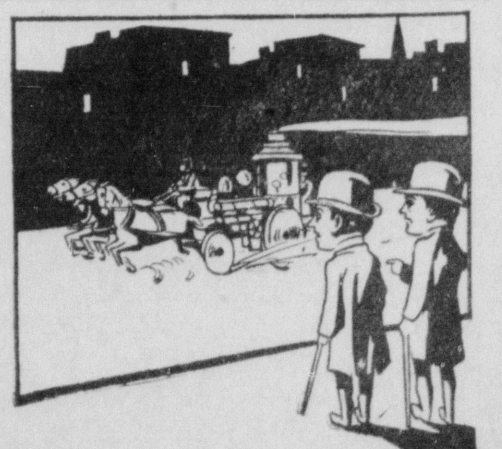

Mr. Ball formerly resided at Brownstown, but moved from that place about fifteen years ago. He visited there frequently, however, and was well known. For some time he had lived at Alexandria where he was employed in the glass works.

On Monday night he drank a large quantity of carbolic acid and died about fifteen minutes afterwards. It is said that his act was due to domestic trouble, and that he had been despondent for some time.

The deceased was the son of James Ball, a well known citizen of Brownstown. He also leaves three brothers at that place. He was about fifty years of age.

In the case of Julia N. Johnson vs. Elmer E. Boone on note, the defendant defaulted and $284.67 and attorneys' fees in the sum of $25 were allowed.

NO MORE ARRESTS MADE

Officials Declare No Confessions in McQuaid Case Were Made.

Although it has been rumored here that several additional arrests in the McQuaid murder case have been made during the past few days and that at least one of the men already arrested had made a full confession of the crime, the reports were without foundation according to a dispatch to the Republican this afternoon. The grand jury met in session Monday but adjourned on the same day without returning any further indictment in the case, and the people at North Vernon do not believe that any more arrests will be made. It is also stated that the officials do not know of any confession which was reported to have been made by the men arrested.

The people at North Vernon are inclined to believe that the officers have the guilty parties, and it is said that some very damaging evidence has been obtained during the past few days. The Jennings county circuit court will not convene before December, so it is probable that the cases of the three men arrested will not be tried before that time.

FEW RECRUITS RECEIVED

Business is Dull at the Local Recruiting Station.

Business is dull at the local recruiting station and but few applications have been received during the past few weeks. It is reported that all stations are reporting a slack business, and the one here is no exception. Captain George Shelton, of the Louisville station inspected the local office today.

It is believed that the demand for all kinds of labor and the coming election are responsible for the dull time around the headquarters. Sergeant C. A. Williamson will invade the territory around North Vernon and Deputy during the next few days and will do some advertising there.

FRAUDS ALLEGED IN REGISTRATION

Said That Over Four Thousand Fictitious Names Were Placed on Lists in Vigo County.

INVESTIGATION BY GRANDJURY

Inspector of One Precinct is Indicted—Believed That Others Will Be Returned Soon.

Terre Haute, Ind., October 23.—The election and registration manipulators responsible for the frauds this year, which had their climax in placing more than four thousand fictitious names on the registration lists, today, for the first time, were thoroughly alarmed. The grand jury and the prosecutor's office are after them with a sharp stick. It is believed that some of the tools of the bosses in the Don M. Roberts machine are willing to turn state's evidence that "those higher up" may be prosecuted.

Twenty-five more indictments were returned this morning against names of alleged voters, who are not known at the addresses given in the registration lists, but the most serious indictment is against Andy Berkley, inspector of registration, in the Taylorville precinct. He is charged with corruptly listing 322 names. It is further charged in the indictment that Berkley "conspired and formed a collusion with others to place the names on the books."

While these indictments were being returned in the circuit court, Judge J. E. Cox, in the superior court, was ruling in favor of the Nonpartisan League in its mandamus proceedings for revision of the registration lists.

Drillers Make Headway in Test Well Near Crothersville.

The drillers who are making the test for oil in the territory between Crothersville and Austin are down two hundred feet, according to a report this afternoon. They are satisfied with the progress that has been made and believe that the required depth will be reached by the first of next week. The progress depends upon the character of the stone and soil within the next five hundred feet. No oil has been found, but it is stated that the promoters are pleased with the indications found.

SIGNS IN INDIANA POINT TO G. O. P.

Thousands of Voters Flocking to Taft Standard.

Letters From State Chairman Sims Urge Workers to Continue Their Efforts Until Polls Close.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Letters to the Republican workers in every county have been sent by Fred Sims, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, Indianapolis, urging them to keep up their energetic efforts until the polls close, when the success of the party in this State will be assured. According to reports received by Mr. Sims from over the State, political conditions have clarified very perceptibly in the last three weeks, and he thinks that party victory now depends upon the vigilance of the workers in each precinct.

Numerous signs which are highly encouraging to the Republicans are visible. One of them is in the heavy registration of the party vote on October 7, indicating that the voters themselves will turn out in force on election day. Another very healthy sign is in the reports that in one county after another Republicans, who earlier in the campaign were in doubt as to what they would do, have definitely made up their minds that a vote for a Progressive candidate would really be a help to the Democrats. It is evident now that the contest is between the Republicans and the Democrats, and the thinking Republicans of the State are aroused in their determination not to turn the election over to the Democracy. Mr. Sims and all other members of the State Republican Committee call upon the Republicans of Indiana to forget animosities, to heal factional dissensions and to present an unbroken front on election day.

During the campaign the State Committee has kept in close touch with its organization throughout Indiana, and as the election day draws near there is every evidence that the working forces are enthusiastic and compact. In fact, it is doubtful if the Republican forces were ever so well organized as they are today, and the chief mission of the organized force is to see that the full party vote gets to the polls. Personal interviews on the part of the workers with the voters has been one of the strong factors in clearing up the atmosphere in the last few weeks, drawing back into the ranks thousands of men who were undecided as to how they should vote.

The potential argument which is winning for the Republicans in city, town and country is that under a Republican administration the era of prosperity will go on—that under a change of administration the future will be marked by uncertainty. It is this argument that has very largely strengthened the Republican party in this State.

While the registration of Republican voters has been highly satisfactory to the State Committee, voters are now urged not to change their residence from one precinct to another until after election, thereby endangering their chances of voting.

CHANGED THEIR TACTICS.

At first the Indiana Democrats thought that a passive campaign effort would win for them. Then, a little later, it was found that an aggressive fight would have to be made. But for some weeks the party, through its speakers has been on the defensive. Mr. Ralston was the first to assume the defensive, and he has been strenuously at it ever since. He has defended the Democratic party in the State against the charges of boss domination, and he has defended himself from the charge of machine control. He has, time and again, sought to amend the State platform, and he has sought to defend the present State administration from the various attacks that have been made upon it. The other speakers, including Governor Marshall, Senator Shively and Senator Kern, have followed practically the same course, the Governor waxing particularly strong in his defense of the Marshall administration.

IF WILSON IS ELECTED.

If Woodrow Wilson is elected—and it will be either Taft or Wilson—every manufacturer and business man will know on the morning of November 6 that the tariff will be radically changed. There will then ensue many months of anxious waiting, during which time business men will curtail their working forces and husband their resources against the blow that is sure to fall. When the new tariff law is enacted, orders will be abroad for immense quantities of goods. The withdrawal of orders from American factories will cause every plant to shut down, force millions of men into idleness and line the sidetracks with empty cars.

In order to pay the bills of the foreign manufacturers, millions of dollars of American gold will have to be sent abroad. This will deplete the bank reserves, with consequent calling of loans and the sacrificing of securities in order to raise ready money. This means commercial and financial panic.

The prosperity of 1892 faded away in less than two years of Democratic administration under the Wilson tariff law. The prosperity of 1912, the climax of 16 years of Republican administration, will also speedily disappear if the Democratic party comes into power.

I have recommended it to a great many people and have never been disappointed as to results obtained from its use. I feel it my duty to write you this as it may be the means of persuading others to give this grand remedy a trial.

TOOTHsome RELISHES.

IN spite of the fact that one may buy in the shops all sorts of pickles, jams, jellies and preserves, there are many housewives who prefer to make their own. They are thus assured of pure food carefully prepared.

To Whet the Appetite.

Chili Sauce.—Take a dozen large chopped tomatoes, two medium sized onions and three green peppers chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of salt, three cupfuls of vinegar, one tablespoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cook until of the right consistency or about one and one-half hours, then bottle for use.

Chutney.—Take four pounds of firm ripe tomatoes which have been chopped, one pound of tart minced apples, one cupful seeded raisins, six small onions and one and one-half pints pure cider vinegar. Let simmer a few minutes before adding one pound of brown sugar, four ounces of salt, two tablespoonfuls of cayenne pepper, one ounce crushed mustard seed and one-half ounce powdered ginger. Cook gently an hour or more until quite soft, then put through a sieve and set aside to cool. For several days stir daily, then seal in jars.

Excellent Condiments.

Tomato Relish.—Take a peck of ripe tomatoes, chop fine and add to them one cupful each of grated horseradish, white mustard seed, chopped onion, brown sugar, chopped nasturtium seed, three stalks of chopped celery, two red peppers, one-half cupful of salt, one tablespoonful each of ground black pepper and cinnamon and one teaspoonful of powdered cloves. Stir well; add a quart of vinegar; mix together and bottle without cooking.

Winter Relish.—Take two quarts of white onions, two heads of cabbage, six green peppers, six heads of celery, two heads of cauliflower, two quarts of green tomatoes, six red peppers and one ounce of celery seed. Sprinkle with salt and let stand overnight. In the morning drain and cook until tender in a sauce made by mixing two cupfuls of flour with three pounds of brown sugar, an ounce of mustard seed and a gallon of vinegar. The flour must form no lumps.

Almost a Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holslaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

Paradoxical.

Brown—Walking down this steep hill is pretty trying, isn't it? Green—It is, indeed; it is regular uphill work.

Puts End To Bad Habit.

Things never look bright to one with "the blues." Ten to one the trouble is a sluggish liver, filling the system with bilious poison, that Dr. King's New Life Pills would expel. Try them. Let the joy of better feelings end "the blues." Best for stomach, liver and kidneys. 25 cents at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

WILD SPENDERS OF TAX-PAYERS' MONEY

Political Work of Democrats Done at Public Expense in State House.

DELAYED BILLS CAUSED RAID

Democratic State Officials Found This Year That They Had State's Finances Shot to Pieces.

How comes it that the Democrats disburse so much more money than was required in Republican times, even in the great building year of 1908?

Well, there is the state house. The record shows that the Democrats are spending, or did spend in 1911, more than $30,000 in excess of the record made in 1908. The increased cost of running the state house in Democratic 1911 over 1908 was $196,459.39. It is in items like this that the taxpayer begins to get an insight into the logic of Taggartism in public office.

The Taggart political headquarters of 1908, and 1910 has been moved bodily from the Denison hotel to the state house, and there is quartered on the people. Political work is there done brazenly and openly at public expense. Men and women on the state pay roll do the tasks of partisan politics and handle the detail of Taggart organization work. In one instance a Taggart man, in charge of Democratic press bureau activities, was awarded a $500 yearly increase in state pay to enable him to perform extra duty as a politician. This is only one of many items showing the willingness of the Democratic legislature of 1911 to spend the public money for political ends regardless of the honest needs of the public.

It is not only in the state house that increases have been made in expenses. In the state institutions, exclusive of permanent improvements, the increase in disbursements, net, in 1911, over 1908, was $502,178.04. Nor is this all, the increase in 1911 over 1910, cost of state institutions, exclusive of permanent improvements, was $145,608.29. The tendency is ever and always upward as time goes on.

So wild were the Democratic spenders in 1911 that in spite of the fact that they were able to use $288,000 and more out of the state debt sinking fund to pay current bills, together with more than $92,000 left over from 1910, and an increased regular state income, they came out at the end of the fiscal year, 1911, with a deficit in the treasury, admitted, of more than $51,000.

In order to meet the big rush of delayed bills at the end of that fiscal year it was necessary to make a raid on the income of the fiscal year 1912. So it was that the Democrats called in September for advance payments from county treasuries ahead of the December tax settlement. In this way the Democrats got more than $103,000. Of this sum more than $51,000 was used to pay 1911 bills. This meant that the Democrats started the year of 1912 with a hole shot in the treasury.

This was not all. The Democrats in 1911 attacked the sacred common school fund and abstracted therefrom the sum of $9,987. This was done against the warning of the outgoing Republican state officials, who themselves had refused to use the money in question. So in view of the fact that this $9,987, with interest, will have to be put back in the sacred common school fund by the Democrats, it is proper to say their real deficit for 1911 was more than $60,000.

The taxpayer who goes to the record can put his finger on the particular items which go to make up the astounding total of Democratic waste and extravagance. There is the governor's legal clerk, a new and extra proposition never before needed, put on at a cost of $3,600 a year. When this clerk resigned there was so little need for a substitute that none was appointed, and the place is vacant at this time. Clearly a case of sinecure provided for a lame back politician.

The board of accounts has authority to hire field examiners and clerks practically without limit and to create expense at will and without restraint. The record shows this body is going the limit in the matter of expense. At last accounts it was costing more than $10,000 a month in its office expense alone, with no sign of reduction. Scourged by the press the board of accounts openly promised to reduce its office force by one-half and to limit its expenses. This pledge was not kept. Though the promise was made last fall and the cut was to be made last December, there has been no cut, but an actual increase in the office expenses of the Democratic board of accounts. Add to this the most flagrant misuse of the power of this board to punish political foes, and to strengthen the Steve Fleming political machine in Indiana; add to this the fact that the taxpayers in townships, counties, towns and cities are unjustly burdened with uncalled for examinations intended merely to keep the examiners busy drawing public pay, and there is small wonder that the public accounting law has been largely discredited and very generally attacked by indignant citizens.

The board of accounts cost in 1911, the sum of $46,210, or more than double the 1910 expense. It is expected to cost more than $100,000 this year.

Overworked, run down "fagged-out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Miss Richter's experience. She says: "Last winter I was completely run down and felt fagged out all the time, was nervous and had indigestion.

"One of my friends advised me to take Vinol and it has done me great good. The tired, worn-out feeling is all gone and I am strong, vigorous and well. The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.

People Who Do Not Read Books.

There is a story of an educated man and an author who believed and maintained that "The Heart of Midlothian" was written by Gladstone. The literate man is astonished to find that people can be happy and refined, witty and wise, without books at all. * * * He should remember that Dickens rarely read anything except his own novels, that Millais never opened a book and that Prince Bismarck is said to have been chiefly happy with Videoc. Adam's Mistake.

Eve had just come in from the wood, where she had gathered unto herself a fine new costume of autumn leaves. "How do you like my new dress, Adie?" she said, striking an attitude before him. "It's a peach," said Adam admiringly. "No, dear; it's a maple," returned Eve. It was about this time that it began to be rumored about that women have no sense of humor.—Lippincott's.

All Sores Are Not Cancerous

While all Old Sores are not cancerous in their nature, every slow healing ulcer shows a degenerated condition of the blood. Virulent impurities in the circulation produce angry, discharging ulcers, while mild and more inert germs are usually manifested in the form of itchy, dry, scabby places. Efforts to heal an old sore with external applications always result in failure because such treatment does not reach the blood, and the ulcer will continue to eat deeper into the surrounding flesh as long as a polluted circulation discharges its impurities into it. S.S.S. heals old sores of every nature by purifying the blood. It goes to the fountain-head of the trouble and drives out the germ-producing poisons and morbid impurities which prevent the place from healing. Then a stream of rich, nourishing blood, which S. S. S. creates, causes a perfect and natural knitting together of all flesh fibres, making a thorough and permanent cure. The sore does not "come back" when S. S. S. has made a cure, because its source has been destroyed. Book on sores and ulcers and medical advice free.

Heart to Heart Talks.

MENTAL MIRAGES.

"Next winter," said my friend, "I am going to begin a course of special study."

I smiled. I knew my friend's weakness—a disposition to procrastinate. He was capable and sincere, but had formed the fatal habit of postponement.

Do you remember the venerable sexton in "Old Curiosity Shop," who always talked of doing things "next summer?"

It was characteristically human. So many of us live in the perennial hope of "some day," some sweet, future day when we shall have time for improvement, when the rough ways shall be smoothed, when we shall begin to save or to make money, when we shall achieve some worthy end.

This is a mental mirage. Like the will-o'-the-wisp, it lures us on through bog and fen and foul morass, holding us back from the present, holding our hope for the future, and we follow on until—

The mirage rises. Disillusion comes. No longer through the shifting kaleidoscope of our hopes do we see the feathery palm trees and the bright waters of the oasis of our fancy. The chance is gone. Grown too old or too weak for accomplishment, we are without satisfaction.

Do not wait for some day. Some day is an illusion. If you would do good or be good, improve your mind or body, call on your neighbor or write your letters or begin your enterprise, it will be no easier tomorrow or the next day or some other day than today.

Do it today! The disposition to "resolve and resolve, then die the same," is in all of us. So that if we are to get anywhere in the world we must get a move on—now!

Want to be more systematic in business, more useful to your friends, kinder to every one? Begin now.

Want to quit your bad habits, pay your bills more promptly, make better use of the chances that come your way? Begin now.

Today is the accepted time. Today is the day of accomplishment. Today if you hear the lure of the futile future harden your heart against it.

Wipe "manana" off your lexicon. There never was such a thing as some day and never will be. There is only today.

Practical Fashions

LADY'S DRESS.

Nothing more stylish or more generally becoming has been designed this season than the pretty costume given in this model. Here we have simplicity and smartness combined to a remarkable degree. The frock closes at the front and the three-gored skirt is made with flounce. Available materials include taffeta, pongee, linen and other pretty wash fabrics. The trimming of contrasting goods adds much to the good style of the garment.

The pattern (5858) is cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Medium size will require 4 1/4 yards of 36 inch material and 1 3/4 yards of 27 inch contrasting goods to make the dress as represented. If made of one material 5 1/4 yards of 36 inch goods are needed.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

The growth and beauty of the hair depends on a healthy condition of the scalp. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly kills the dandruff germs which rob the hair of its life, color and luster makes the scalp clean and healthy, gives the hair strength, color and beauty, and makes it grow.

A RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT.

Safety rather than sensationalism has been the motto of President Taft. His administration has been marked by substantial achievements rather than by spectacular performances. He has sought not merely temporary good to the people of this great country but has brought into existence and enforced measures which will be for the permanent good of the nation. As people understand more fully what his administration has accomplished, they are turning more and more to him as the man who should be retained in charge of our great national interests.

Under his administration the corporations have been controlled as never before; the tariff law brought an enormous increase in importation of merchandise free of duty as well as a distinct lowering of rates of duty on hundreds of items, and turned a treasury deficit into a surplus. This act also made it possible for the President to create a non-partisan tariff board to obtain accurate information upon which future rates of duty could be based. This information in the hands of Congress will enable them to act intelligently on the various important schedules.

For working men laws have been passed, leading to the abolishment of working seven days in the week in many branches of industry; the installation of safety devices and means of accident prevention; the study of different systems of working-men's compensation in all the leading industrial countries in the world, and the study of child labor in the industries of the country.

The work of Taft's administration in behalf of people through the post-office department has been especially important; postal savings banks have been established and many thousands of people have entrusted their savings to the government through the postoffice, which becomes responsible for them and thus passes into general circulation millions of dollars which formerly lay idle; fraudulent concerns seeking to fleece the people through unlawful use of the mails have been suppressed; a parcels post system has been adopted and will begin operation January 1 and the deficit in the postoffice department has been turned into a surplus.

Economy in the administration has been a marked feature of President Taft's administration. The estimates of the departments for current expenses have received careful consideration and many millions in expenditures have been saved through careful revision of these estimates; the Corporation Tax law, yielding thirty millions annually to the government has been passed and is in operation; a Court of Commerce has been established to review the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Numerous other important features will attract more and more attention as the record of President Taft's administration is being looked up. People are coming to understand clearly that it will be the wise policy to continue an administration which shows so large a list of accomplishments rather than venture a change with its resultant disorganization of our present prosperous conditions.

a better condition financially than they have ever been, there is a good demand for all kinds of labor at top notch wages, factories are running full time and there is a general condition of contentment among all classes. A change will bring different results as new policies will be adopted. Can you, Mr. Voter, afford to help in bringing about hard times by your vote?

LIBRARY COMMISSION

Makes Arrangements to Supply Books to Small Towns.

The public library commission of Indiana has made arrangements to supply small communities in the state such as are beyond the reach of the public libraries of cities and towns, with traveling libraries. For this purpose 9,000 volumes, suitable to all tastes, ages and moods, have been purchased and are now being prepared for shipment to all parts of the state. The books will be sent out to applicants neatly packed in a cedar box which can be converted into a shelf when it reaches its destination. The books are sent out in selections of forty volumes. The only cost upon the applicant is the transportation charge, which is nominal. The books are loaned for three-months-periods, except in the cases of schools or clubs, when the time is extended to one year.

To secure the books an association may be formed by five or more persons, of whom two must be tax payers and who are to act as guarantors. In connection with the traveling library collections of pictures will also be sent over the state. Applications should be sent to Indiana Library commission, Room 104, state house, Indianapolis.

WAGES IN 1893 AND 1912.

A comparison of daily wages paid American workmen in the Democratic campaign of 1893 and what these workmen have received during the Republican prosperity year of 1912, shows the following:

	1893	1912
Blacksmiths	$2.45	$3.75-$4.00
Bricklayers	3.50	4.50-5.00
Carpenters	2.50	4.50-5.00
Hodcarriers	2.00	4.25-4.50
Painters	2.60	4.00-5.00
Teamsters	1.50	3.75-4.00
Unskilled laborers50c-1.00	2.15-2.50

These figures are taken from federal, state and labor union bureaus and show that in the last ten years there has been an amazing increase of wages to workmen, and in many instances the increased pay has been accompanied by a reduction in working hours. This raises the question, If workmen have prosperity under Republican administration, why risk the dangers of a change in political control?

MEANING OF THE RECALL.

A comprehensive view of the initiative, referendum and recall, advocated by the Progressive party, is given by Elmer Bassett in the Shelbyville News, in which he says:

Let us see how the initiative, referendum and recall of judicial decisions, when coupled together, will operate. By the initiative it is proposed to provide that when a certain per cent. or number of the citizens of the State shall petition the Legislature to pass a certain bill, the legislature shall pass the bill as petitioned for. Then the bill shall be referred to the people at the next general election for ratification. If the voters vote to ratify the bill, the same shall become a law.

Now suppose that A shall sue B, and the suit shall involve a matter and be in reference to a matter with which the said law shall have to do and to deal; that the controversy shall be decided under this law. Suppose A shall contend that the said law is unconstitutional, that it is contrary to the provisions of our written constitution, and that the court trying the cause and the Supreme Court shall so hold the law to be unconstitutional.

Suppose B is a party of means and influence, say the steel trust, harvester trust, oil trust or some other, that he prepares and circulates a petition for an election to recall the decision of the court as aforesaid; that he gets on said petition the required number of petitioners and presents said petition to the proper authority and an election is called. Now B, being a party of great wealth, the steel trust, oil trust or tobacco trust, or some other trust with great wealth, employs speakers to stump the State and present arguments in favor of the recall of the decision as aforesaid, and suppose the said B buys space in the newspapers of the State and has printed and published in the same their argument for the said recall of said decision. Suppose A is a poor person and can not present his arguments in the same manner as to why said decision should not be recalled.

The people read one side of the case, believe they are informed and that they are able to vote intelligently upon the question, and do vote to recall said decision. What is the result? A law shall stand on the statute books of the State, which law is unconstitutional, and the constitution is overridden and counts for nothing. It is easy for one to see the dangers of such proceeding and such a law. The fundamental law of the land will be broken down and our form of government changed.

COLLEGE MEN FOR TAFT.

Appeals to the college graduates of Indiana, regardless of the school they represent, to contribute to the campaign funds of Woodrow Wilson because of his services as president of Princeton University, have not been as cordially received as the Woodrow Wilson College Men's League had hoped. The league has found that President Taft has a warm place in the hearts of college men, especially those of Harvard College, where he was graduated with high honors.

One Harvard man who was asked to give to the Wilson fund wrote to the league: "Because of his unflinching adherence to truth, President Taft deserves the support of every Harvard man. He has steadfastly refused to compromise with error. He has kept in the straight course dictated only by wise and deliberate judgment, uninfluenced by any selfish interests or by any mere policies of parties or persons. He has been true to his friends and true to his noble principles and high sense of duty."

"Mr. Taft has fought, and is still fighting, for the cause of good government, for the cause of progress and reform under our constitution. He stands today, in a greater measure than does any other living person, as the bulwark of our constitutional government against impracticable and vicious innovations."

Age and Respectability.

The learned (?) gentlemen who are trying to make indecent dances respectable by investing them with a long pedigree are trying a task at once easy and impossible.

Easy, because nothing is more widespread and more indestructible than tune and its accompanying gestures.

A tune, plainly the first cousin of "Auld Lang Syne," has been reported from central Asia. An English explorer once found the services in a temple in the Himalayas conducted to the tune of "My Boy Billy."

For all anyone knows to the contrary there may be hymn tunes in our churches today which Plato heard in Egypt three centuries before Christ.

But to make a "bear cat" wriggle respectable—ah, that is quite another thing. The oldest profession has never been esteemed the most honorable.

RACES STOPPED BY MILITIAMEN

State Troops Capture the Track at Porter.

CHARGED WITH BAYONETS

Disregarding Howls of Managers of Gambling Game Which Has Been Going on in Porter County, Major Freyermuth of the Third Infantry Orders His Men to Take Charge of the Entrances.

Porter, Ind., Oct. 23.—When Major Freyermuth of South Bend reached the Porter track with Company F of the Third Infantry, trouble started at once. A. F. Knotts, in charge of the track, defied the militiamen to enter the grounds, then demanded that each should pay admission. Freyermuth, disregarding his protests, ordered his men to take charge of the ticket windows and turnstiles and sent others to meet the trains and advise passengers to return. Freyermuth's vigorous action followed a conference at Michigan City with Attorney General Hoffman and Brigadier General Garrard, who told him to go the limit.

When the horses were brought out for the first race, Captain Kimball of the South Bend company ordered his men to fix bayonets and the horses with their jockeys were driven back into the stables.

The soldiers pitched their tents within the inclosure. They kept every one from entering and those who were within the inclosure they held. More than fifty women who had arrived in anticipation of seeing the races were not permitted to leave the track. The owners and promoters of the course also are within the inclosure.

A special train from Chicago bearing a large number of spectators arrived just after the state guard appeared. It returned to Chicago with practically all of its passengers.

The race meeting at Porter was to be continued for fifteen days. The Indiana law permits fifteen days of racing each year, but gambling at the track is prohibited, and it was the instant violation of this prohibition that caused Governor Marshall to act. Advertisements of the meet announced purses aggregating $3,000 could be distributed daily. Special rates by railroad and boat had been announced by railroads in Illinois and Indiana. The track is operated by a co-partnership. Among the partners in the enterprise were A. F. Knotts, Lemuel Darrow, Fred Henoch, J. R. Malone, John A. Gavit, Fred S. Carter, Peter Crumpacker and Clarence Bretsch. The old disreputable handbook crowd of Chicago, with Mont Tennes and Jim O'Leary at its head, is interested in the project and just was getting ready to reap a harvest.

Ben R. Hyman, chief track functionary of the Mineral Springs Jockey club, became tremendously indignant when he was asked the day before to give a newspaper photographer permission to enter the space under the grandstand and take his machine with him.

"What in h— is the matter with you fellows?" he stammered. "Are you crazy? Do you realize it merely is through kindness on our part and by the indulgence of the management of these races that you are permitted to enter the grounds at all? If any photographer tries to go down there with his machine he will be thrown out, and you will be thrown out, too."

"Is that a threat, Mr. Hyman?"

"Take it any way you like. It is a fact. I am running this place for a number of fine gentlemen who have invested in the racetrack. We are going to run things to suit ourselves."

The photographer wanted to get a picture of the bookmakers holding huge stacks of banknotes in their hands after one of the races. The last vestige of secrecy in tramping the Indiana state law under foot and making of Mineral Springs a carnival of gambling had vanished. On the road from the train to the track were hawkers selling handicap cards with the winners picked by some racetrack hant. These cards sold for 25 cents. The bookmakers did not try to hide their rolls. They reaped a bountiful harvest.

MABEL HITE

Popular Actress, Wife of Mike Donlin, Dead After Long Illness.

New York, Oct. 23.—Mabel Hite, the actress wife of Michael Donlin, the baseball player, was known to theatre goers, died late yesterday afternoon at her apartments, following a long illness which the physicians and surgeons who attended Mrs. Donlin before she took up Christian Science early in the summer diagnosed as cancer. Miss Hite's stage work during the past three years has been interrupted frequently by illness.

COLONEL IS RESTING UNDER HIS OWN ROOF

Doctors and Nurses Dismissed at His Order.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Smiling and unassisted, Colonel Roosevelt walked from the private car which had brought him from Chicago to the limousine awaiting him at Syosset, and with a waved greeting to the few who attended his unexpected arrival, was borne swiftly across the intervening four miles to Sagamore Hill. Today he lies comfortably in his upstairs room, to which he ascended with only slight assistance. All four of the doctors who escorted him hither and the nurses have been dismissed for the time being at his order. Nothing about the residence of the ex-president indicates that all is not as usual. Apparently his long journey did not distress him at all. As far as his wound is concerned, he says that he suffers no pain, except under pressure. Although the first idea was to go direct to Oyster Bay, this plan was changed to avoid the risk of a demonstration of welcome from the colonel's fellow townsmen, and his car was put on a siding at Syosset. When he alighted at Syosset the colonel was wearing the army greatcoat which bore the mark of the shot received at Milwaukee a week ago Monday night. With Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and George Roosevelt, he climbed with a firm step into the closed automobile and drove up to the stoop at Sagamore Hill.

The colonel has been strictly enjoined to see no visitors. This afternoon Drs. Lambert and Terrell are expected to return. Meanwhile he is being attended only by members of the family and his devoted negro body servant. "Jim," who is tireless in his watch.

A WHITE SLAVE INQUIRY NOW ON

Champion Pugilist On the Rack at Chicago.

WHITE GIRL CHIEF WITNESS

After Much Persuasion Miss Lucille Cameron Consented to Appear Before the Federal Grand Jury and Tell of Her Relations With Jack Johnson, Who Is Under Bond in Chicago on the Charge of Abduction.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—When it summoned Miss Lucille Cameron, the nineteen-year-old white girl from Minneapolis, alleged to have been abducted by the negro, to testify, the federal grand jury took a hand in the affairs of Pugilist Jack Johnson. The government hopes through the inquiry to establish the charge that the prize fighter has violated the Mann act by causing the girl, and perhaps other girls, to be brought to Chicago from other states illegally.

After much persuasion on the part of the mother of the girl and other women who have become interested in the case, Miss Cameron took the witness stand after she had been brought

LUCILLE CAMERON.

Chicago from Rockford, where she was being held under heavy bond. After she had been in the witness chair for more than an hour she became hysterical and fainted, requiring the services of two physicians and halting the examination.

The girl is said to have given the grand jury considerable information concerning the white slave traffic.

As a result of an investigation it is said the government has gained information that there are several women who make a business of procuring white girls for prosperous negroes.

Denounced by His Race.

Washington, Oct. 23.—At a meeting of several hundred negroes here last night resolutions were adopted declaring Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, a disgrace to his race and an outcast, "now and forevermore."

BATTLE IMMINENT

Mexican Federal Troops Proceed to Center of Diaz Revolt.

Mexico City, Oct. 23.—Eight trains bringing the troops of General Blaquet from the north, arrived here and left at once for Vera Cruz. Four hundred Coahuila volunteers who composed part of the force remained here. General Blaquet has 1,400 men and sixty-three officers, with two cannon and two rapid-fire guns.

In an interview General Blaquet was good-natured and hopeful, but reticent as to his plans.

Government officials announced later that the federals had entered Vera Cruz after a bloody combat, but railroad men say the government troops have not left Tejeria and Santa Fe, the mobilization points, and absolutely authentic private messages say the situation at Vera Cruz is unchanged.

KIAMIL PASHA

President of Turkish Council a Power in the Present War.

POWERS PLANNING TO PUT A STOP TO WAR

Will Intervene After Battle of Adrianople.

London, Oct. 23.—At all points except Mustapha Pasha, where there has been heavy fighting, the advance of the Bulgarians upon Adrianople where the most important battle of the Balkan war will in all probability be fought has been stopped. King Ferdinand is moving his pawns with caution. He realizes as do all military men in Europe, the importance of the undertaking. Next is expected that the powers will come forward, after the inevitable battle around Adrianople, and take extraordinary measures to induce the victor in this contest to accept moderate terms and end the trouble in the Balkans then and there.

But while the Bulgars are coming gingerly to the outskirts of Adrianople, the Serbians are having their fill of fighting in their march on Uskub. They find themselves opposed by 40,000 Arnaut tribesmen, supported by a thousand Turkish regulars and four batteries of artillery.

From the Montenegrins comes word that they have been bombarding Tarakaseh for the past four days. Scutari, it appears, is not so easy to capture as the troops of King Nicholas have thought. The Greeks are bombarding Provasa, at the entrance to the Gulf of Arta, and have landed troops south-east of Salonika.

The Ottoman troops are attacking the Bulgars all along the line from Adrianople to Kirk-Killesseh, where the fighting is hottest. Not only has the Bulgarian advance been very suddenly checked, but the Bulgars find themselves in a hostile country with their lines of communication seriously endangered. Kallimandja and Tundja are said to have fallen to the Turks and the Bulgarian loss is reported to be heavy.

SELECTED SITE

Governor Marshall Picked Place for Indiana Building.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Governor Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, interrupted his campaign here yesterday to select a site for the Indiana building on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific exposition. Governor Marshall, who made two addresses here last night, went to the fair ground from a luncheon tendered him by the exposition directors. He was escorted by a troop of cavalry to the site which is on the Presidio military reservation, and before taking possession, reviewed a parade of two regiments of United States troops in his honor. A large number of members of the Indiana State Society of Indiana were present at the ceremony.

Grand Jury Investigating.

Tipton, Ind., Oct. 23.—The grand jury is investigating the case of R. O. Emerson, who shot and killed Robert Baughman ten days ago. Emerson tipped off Baughman as a safeblower and helped in the pursuit of him, finally killing him when he took refuge under a house.

CONSERVATION OF GAME BIRDS

Prairie Chickens Are Thriving
In Indiana.

EFFECT OF "CLOSED" LAW

Act of 1909 Prohibiting the Killing of Prairie Chickens For a Period of Six Years Has Resulted in Saving a Once Numberless Flock From Utter Extinction, and the Prairie Lands Are Rapidly Becoming Restocked.

Indianapolis, Oct. 23.—George W. Miles, commissioner of fisheries and game, has announced, following a series of investigations his deputies have been making, that a conservative estimate of the number of prairie chickens now in Indiana is 100,000. The counties about the Kankakee basin hold the majority of the game birds. In 1909 the legislature passed a bill prohibiting the shooting of prairie chickens at any time and the state department immediately took up the work of rebuilding the shattered numbers of the birds throughout the state. The law extends for six years and in 1914, Mr. Miles said, it is probable the legislature will be asked to open a very short season for the chicken hunters, if any at all.

The farmers in the northern counties have been co-operating with the state department in its attempts to prevent the extermination of the birds. Mr. Miles said. This year deputies on motorcycles have patrolled the counties the birds haunt and have run down every hunter found illegally shooting the game.

Few persons in the state realize that such a "harvest" of the birds has been nurtured in the northern counties, the state official said. Mr. Miles said the plans of the state department contemplate allowing a very short open season on the birds at the expiration of the "closed" law. A small bag limit and the shutting out of the birds from markets of the state will aid in keeping them here in large numbers. Mr. Miles said. Because the same principles have been followed with regard to the quail in Indiana, those birds are slowly increasing in numbers, the commissioner said.

WITNESSES CALLED

Committee Summons Beveridge and Several Others to Washington.

Indianapolis, Oct. 23.—Albert J. Beveridge, John F. Hayes, his former private secretary; L. G. Rothschild and Larz Whitcomb of this city, and Henry R. Pettit of Wabash, have been summoned to Washington to testify before the senate campaign contribution investigating committee. The men called were directed to bring with them all books, papers and documents relating to the handling of Republican campaign money in Indiana in the campaigns of 1904 and 1908, and any information they may possess regarding expenditures in behalf of any candidate for office in the two campaigns.

It is understood that the senate committee wishes to inquire into the Beveridge campaign fund of 1904. George W. Perkins testified before the committee that Beveridge returned to him $10,000 which he sent the former senator for use in his campaign that year.

When Perkins was pressed by the committee to learn how much more, if any, than $10,000 he had sent to Beveridge, the only answer the committee could get was that he did not remember. The committee wishes to know whether a larger amount was sent and whether a part of it was used in the Beveridge campaign.

Illegal Registration Charged.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 23.—Deputy sheriffs have started out with bench warrants for the arrest of forty persons who were indicted by the Vigo county grand jury for alleged illegal registration. The indictments were returned against "voters" who registered from Precinct D of the Sixth ward, but it is not believed many will be found, as they registered under assumed names.

Wouldn't Trust the Cars.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Margaret Carroll, age eighty-one, who died here yesterday, had never ridden on a railway. She was born in Ireland, came to America when an infant and made the trip from the seaboard to Ft. Wayne by boat and overland wagon seventy-seven years ago. Mrs. Carroll had always refused to travel even for a short distance on a train.

Found Dead in Vacant House.

Milan, Ind., Oct. 23.—The body of a man was found in a vacant house near this place. The man had been dead several hours. The coroner pronounced death due to natural causes. The man was about thirty-five years old, of light complexion and about five feet ten inches in height. The only mark about the clothing was H. H. O. on his linen.

Auto Falls Into Creek.

Attica, Ind., Oct. 23.—Dashing along the highway at forty miles an hour an automobile containing Frank Judy aged twenty-two, of West Lebanon, and a boy friend, ran off the bridge a half mile west of this city and dropped into the creek. Judy suffered injuries that are expected to prove fatal.

THE BECKER DEFENSE SUSTAINS HARD BLOW

Driver of Murder Car Corroborates Jack Rose.

New York, Oct. 23.—Before 11 o'clock tomorrow morning Lieutenant Becker's jury will retire to decide whether or not he is guilty of the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Today is being devoted entirely to the summing up. Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Justice Goff will deliver his charge to the jury.

The defense rested its case without calling Becker as a witness. The case of the defense sagged to an end after their last witnesses had made admissions hurtful to Lieutenant Becker's cause and discouraging to his lawyers. And then the district attorney as a final blow hurled against them the testimony of Willie Shapiro, the chauffeur of the murder car, who, bending to the persuasions of his lawyer, broke away from the gunmen, who cursed him as he left them in the Tombs, and corroborated, on the witness stand, everything that Jack Rose had testified to about rounding up the murderers and about their departure from Webber's gambling house to kill Rosenthal.

Shapiro's decision at the last moment to let the gunmen, Jack Sullivan and Becker shift for themselves, was a shocking blow to the defense. They had tried to get Shapiro to testify for Becker. In the Tombs the chauffeur had been urged to keep his mouth shut at least. But his lawyer advised him that if he hoped to save himself from the electric chair he had better volunteer to tell the truth. So Shapiro made an affidavit covering his connection with the murder. It was not only a detailed corroboration of the testimony of Rose and of the other informers as to the movements of the murderers, but of their accusation that Becker was the director of the murder.

Girl Slain by Italians.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 23.—An unknown young woman who is supposed to have lived in Water street in this city, was taken in an auto to a lonely spot on the road from Bridgeport to Derby early last evening by five Italians and shot to death by one of them. Three men believed to have been members of the party are under arrest.

Fined Despite Victim's Protest.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Oda Jones was seized with a nightmare while sleeping, and grabbing a pair of scissors stabbed her husband. The screams of the husband awakened the neighbors. The police were called and the woman was arrested. In spite of the protests of the husband Mrs. Jones was fined $25 and costs.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Bag of Loot.

When I regained consciousness, John was putting me on the couch in my sitting-room, and there was a jumble of faces before me—Jo, and Laura, and Mrs. Hazard, all badly frightened, clutching at unfastened dressing-gowns. Natalie was there, too, but I did not see her at first.

"I'm afraid she's badly hurt," John was saying. "Did Doctor Graham answer, Hap?"

Hap was crushing my hand within both of his, hurting me, but I didn't want to say so. Everything was terribly confusing. My right shoulder was hurt; the doctor said afterward I must have struck the wall as I plunged down the steps into the wing, and that saved me, perhaps, from breaking my neck. It was later I discovered that my right arm was broken, when I remembered the bag I had picked up and couldn't feel it.

"The jewels!" I cried.

"Jewels!" everybody repeated in one tone—a tone of surprise.

"I had them when I fell," I said. "A bag of jewels."

Hap groaned. I'm sure he thought I was out of my head, and after a great deal of fuss he managed to get a drink of brandy down my throat—what he didn't spill down my neck. But John went out and came back presently with the bag. It was a dark green cloth bag like lawyers carry their—whatever they do carry in them. And thrown into it, like so many potatoes, was about the most beautiful collection of jewels I have ever seen. There was a silk stocking—Lydia's—containing more jewels; and Mrs. Higginson's hot-water bottle.

"A thief would never look for jewels in a hot-water bottle," I quoted hysterically.

When I remembered again, John was sitting at my desk with the glittering mass spread out before him. Every one had crowded around him, except Hap, who was kneeling beside the couch, holding my hand desperately and listening for the sound of the doctor's car. I remember that it lazily occurred to me how beautifully the lavender brocade dressing-gown John wore and the soft pink of Jo's kimono harmonized—and lavender and pink usually don't.

"Where did you get them, Loulie?" Jo asked. "What happened, dear?"

My head was buzzing; there was a pounding in my ears. Her questions seemed to make a jumble of my thoughts.

"Why, of course, I must tell you," I tried to think clearly. "I—I found them—found them in the card-room."

"Yes, dear," Jo soothed. "What were you doing in the card-room?"

"I heard a noise in the gallery and wanted to see—see—I—I found them—found them in the card-room."

Everybody looked so queer! Natalie glanced quickly at Mrs. Hazard—a glance Laura intercepted. I sat up suddenly.

"Surely you don't think I took them!" I fell back against the pillows again with a groan, but it was because little unseen devils tortured me when I moved.

"She must not talk," Laura exclaimed. "Don't question her. It isn't fair. She doesn't know what she is saying. For Heaven's sake, why doesn't the doctor come?"

Jo sat down beside me helplessly. There was nothing anybody could do until the doctor did come.

"I think there's loot here from everybody," John remarked. "It's a jolly mess."

From the mess he separated Dorothy Ambercrombie's green lizard with the ruby eyes, Mrs. Abercrombie's moonstone set with sixteen large diamonds, and that crazy by-knot collar of Mrs. Sargent's. Then Natalie pointed out other things she recognized. But there was left a jumble of solitaires, handsome but nondescript; rings and pendants, bracelets and brooches that only their owners could identify.

"Everybody but myself," Natalie said finally. "There's not a single thing there of mine."

Somehow it seemed to me there ought to have been in the bag those things she lost earlier.

"You had a pistol," I said weakly, thinking of it.

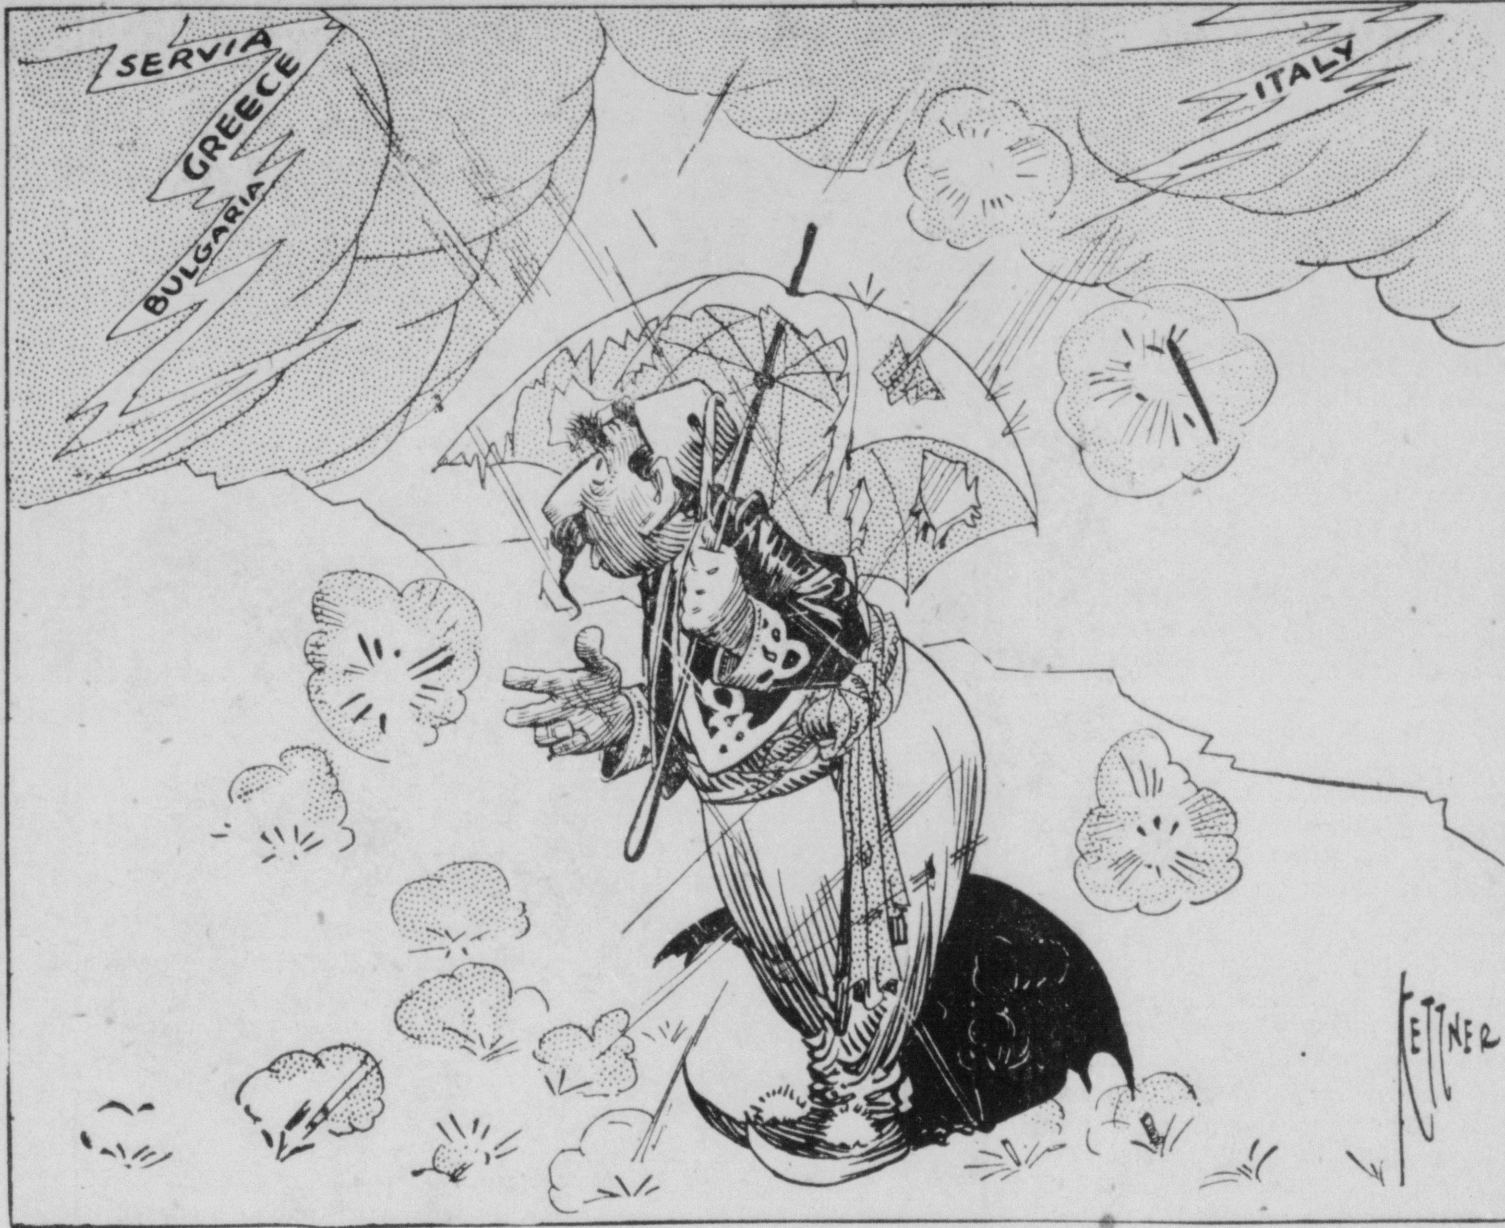

"Yes, but no one knew it but you!" said Natalie. And if a good, clear thought had come to me out of my throbbing head I would have seen what everybody saw later.

"The thieves were in the gallery," I tried to tell them. "I heard—I heard a hammer fall. I went to see—suddenly I thought of Winthrop, and I closed my lips tightly for fear I would say I had seen him there on the lawn."

"Yes, dear," Laura soothed. "We'll look. The thieves are gone now, but we have the jewels, so it's all right. No harm done. John will hold a levee after luncheon and return them."

I suppose it occurred to John what a job that was going to be, especially

"IT NEVER RAINS BUT IT POURS"

as he was apt to have a crowd of hysterical women on his hands any minute. He tumbled the jewels back into the bag as Doctor Graham's horn rent the air, and was just about to pull the string securing them.

"Well, I'll be damned!" he exclaimed. "This is my bag!"

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Disappearance.

Dawn found me lying on the couch in my sitting-room, pale and a little sick from the ether, with my right arm nicely bandaged and a bruise on my shoulder about as big as a turkey-platter. Doctor Graham, after mixing me some vile stuff—doctors are brutes about medicine—cheerfully turned to discuss art with Jo, apropos of the search of the gallery for any signs of disturbance. Nothing unusual was found anywhere, except the door at the bottom of the steps leading to the tennis courts was open, and a hammer that was proved did not belong to any one connected with Lone Oak was lying on one of the courts. The thieves had made good their escape during the commotion that followed my plunge down the steps into the wing.

When I awoke from the sleep the doctor prescribed it was noon. The room was fragrant with flowers and there was a huge bunch of pink roses that I knew had not been cut at Lone Oak. Laura was with me, and Celia tearfully hovered in the background. Celia brought my breakfast and Laura explained that Jo had gone, reluctantly, to play golf with John Crowninshield, who decided not to go to town.

"There's a nurse coming," she concluded.

"Nurse!" I exclaimed. "What do I want with a nurse? I'm going downstairs tonight if I can get a sleeve over this arm."

To prove I could get up, I did, but I was rather trembly.

"Loulie, it was too funny about that silk stocking and the hot-water bottle," Laura laughed gleefully.

"Has everybody discovered the robbery?" I asked.

"They were up shrieking before ten," she told me. "John had an awful time getting things straight. There are ten solitaires still in doubt. I think Dorothy and Mrs. Sargent will have to toss for them. Funny, isn't it, people don't know their own jewels?"

"Did any one else hear the racket we made last night?"

"No," she replied. "No wonder they were robbed. Mrs. Cutler thinks there must have been an attempt to chloroform her. There was no cloth or anything that has been saturated, but the odor of chloroform was in her room. Thank Heaven, there's no way to implicate Winthrop in this."

Winthrop! I closed my lips tightly again. No one but I knew he had been there on the lawn; no one but myself was going to know it. But Thomas! The thought startled me! He knew it. But—

Laura finally broke the silence with one of her startling questions:

"Loulie, are you going to marry Hap?"

I shook my head decidedly.

"Why not? Won't you tell me? Have you a reason, dear?"

"Yes."

She paled a little, I didn't know why at the time.

"Won't you confide in me?" she pleaded. "And let me help you? I can help you, no matter how difficult it is."

She was very winning and sweet. I intended to tell her jokingly my reason was that her mother really had intended me as a pace-maker for her, and that I'd have to be free to encourage the eligibles until she was quite sure just who she wanted to marry, but I was weak, and the tears were very near the surface. Two brimmed over and rolled down my cheek. I couldn't joke!

"You love him—don't try to deny it. Why are you giving him up?"

"I can't let him spoil his life with me," was what I said after all. "I couldn't spoil your chances with His Grace if you decide to want him.

"Has Everybody Discovered the Robbery?" I Asked.

His Grace would be terribly shocked—

"I don't want him," she interrupted. "I love Winthrop and I'm going to marry him—if he ever asks me."

"But I am nobody," I insisted. "I haven't a penny. Marriage—marriage is impossible!"

She looked at me in amazement. "Is that your only reason?" she asked.

"Surely—"

"Is that all? Oh, my poor, deluded little Loulie! What difference does a few paltry dollars make? I'm so glad that's the reason, dear; so very, very glad."

She came close to me and slipped her arm around my waist. "Dear, if you had told me something terrible, some awful thing that was keeping you from saying 'yes' to Hap, I would have loved you just the same. Remember that."

It was a shameless statement. I wonder I did not see its significance at the time, but I only realized that her affection was one of the most wonderful things that had ever happened to me.

"You're a queer person," I told her. "Now, won't you let me say to Hap that he may come up after luncheon?"

She tried to keep me from shaking my head. "I'm afraid he will come, even if you don't say so. I've had a terrible time keeping him out while you slept. He went to town for the roses"—she pointed to them—"and was back in an hour. I don't know how he escaped being arrested for speeding. By the way, the detective is here. He wants to ask you some questions when you are well enough to see him. We've had an exciting morning being questioned. He's rather a nice-looking chap. I think Natalie found her interview with him much more agreeable than she expected. His eyes are blue," she finished irrelevantly.

"Has he talked to Mr. Abbott?"

"Yes. He and John—by the way, his name is Adams—went over to Winthrop's this morning. Winthrop came back with them; he came to play golf. He was unusually cheerful, too. He has finished his novel. I don't think he cares how many emerald bracelets he is accused of stealing, since that is over. And I'm forgetting to tell you that Mrs. Dykeman has dug up a German count. I don't know how he ranks. He's a connoisseur on art, or some kind of a high-brow. She's giving a German musical next week. Ich dien! Oh! We had a message from the Schuylers. The general is entirely out of danger."

I lay on the couch for a long time thinking after Laura had gone, and Celia had arranged my hair and tenderly gotten me into a negligee. I tried—tried desperately—to see a way out of all the robberies for Winthrop and I could not do it. Except for the ruby, when Laura had proved that he was at home, and the woman in the corridor, every circumstance pointed to him. What did he actually know of it all? Was he shielding some one? A woman? But that thought was ugly. I had rather believe him a thief!

The door of my sitting-room, leading into the corridor, was standing open, for the day was intensely hot, and I caught the sound of Hap's voice. He was talking to his mother. I listened, not deliberately to what he said, but just to hear his voice; and because there was no one to see, I arose and buried my face in the roses—his roses. It was wrong to listen; I knew it. I could not fail to hear what he said.

At first the full meaning of his words did not strike me, nor even the tone of the argument. I was thinking of other things. Then he spoke my name. He was angry; I listened, amazed.

"I don't care if she is a thief," he said, "I want her, and I'm going to have her. I'd marry her if she is proved a thief a thousand times. And I wouldn't believe her a thief if I saw her stealing!"

His mother's answer I didn't want to hear; an instant later I stood in the doorway across the corridor.

"Don't believe him," I said to his mother. "He isn't going to marry me."

Hap, with an exclamation of concern, threw some pillows into a chair and indicated an intention to carry me to it.

"I'm not an invalid," I insisted. And I walked to the chair. "I've just a silly broken arm, otherwise I am quite fit. Now, tell me why am I a thief again?" I was quite calm about it, but I had to sit down, for my knees were shaky and I was realizing why Laura had said such queer things to me.

Hap made some choky noises like men do when they want to swear:

"Just because I found some jewels in the card room, and can't tell you who put them there, or why they were there?" The whole thing suddenly struck me as absurd and amusing. I laughed. "My story isn't plausible?"

Mrs. Hazard began to cry—what a blessing tears are to a woman—and it was so different from her dear chuckle I could not resist the impulse to go to her and put my only good arm around her fat neck.

"Please don't cry," I begged. "I can't see that it's worth one little tear. I'm not going to let him marry me, be sure of that; and the other only concerns myself."

"My dear child," she sobbed, "I feel responsible for everything. I told your sister I would take care of you."

"You distinctly said you would not be responsible for any lacerated affections, and you certainly can't help it if I'm a thief. I tried to get him on the right track, but—"

"Right track!" she sobbed.

"Right track?" Hap echoed.

And, notwithstanding the gravity of the situation and the tears running down her fat cheeks, Mrs. Hazard chuckled. She dabbed at her eyes.

"I said, too, you might pick a plum from the social pudding, and I had no objection. If the plum happens to be my own son it's my own fault."

"What are you two talking about?" Hap demanded. "I love her, and I'm going to marry her whether she's a thief or not."

"All right, take her," Mrs. Hazard replied, giving me a gentle push, and Hap gazed at her with that comically surprised expression. "Just be sure to pour the coffee for him every morning at breakfast, my very dear little girl, and you have my blessing. It just occurs to me that I've never yet made a mistake in estimating a person, and I'm not going to begin now."

"But gracious me!" I exclaimed, as Hap swept me to my feet and shamelessly kissed me, "I'm accused of stealing!"

"We'll have to prove you innocent!" Her tone was final. "I must have my judgment vindicated."

"But—"

"The bag was my brother's," she interrupted belligerently. "It occurs to me that he needs to do some explaining."

"Surely you don't think—?"

"I don't think anything, after the fool I've just made of myself trying to. We have a detective here now to do the thinking. If he thinks wrong, I'll discharge him. Why isn't your story true? You heard a noise in the gallery; you're a brave girl and you went to see what it was. I would have been crazy with curiosity myself. If you don't know why a thief put down a bag of jewels on the floor of the card-room and left it there for you to find, why you can't help it. Natalie having a pistol and you knowing it is just a coincidence. The thieves didn't get to her, that's all. The door of the back stairs was open and a hammer was dropped on the court where a hammer doesn't belong. It's quite plain that the thieves came from outside, since I've had the common sense to think of it."

But I saw how unreasonable my story was as she repeated it. The absurdity of my being in the card-room when I had said the noise was in the gallery, the absolutely ridiculous idea that a thief had put down a bag of loot on the floor of the card-room for me to pick up, and yet that's what he did—it was all a child's story. And I couldn't speak of Winthrop, nor of Thomas without mentioning Winthrop, and Winthrop had enough to do to explain the emerald bracelet.

"There won't be any further trouble," she went on. "Every jewel has been taken to a bank until somebody has been proven guilty. Now let the detective solve it. And he may just as well prove Winthrop innocent while he's at it. Winthrop is a farmer, not a thief." She dismissed the subject with an airy motion of her fat hand. "Since you've got Hap on the right track—"

"What's this right track thing?" Hap demanded.

"A scheme, a put-up job, to make you notice me," I replied. "But I had to do it; it was a part of my job." I suddenly covered my face with my hands.

"I guess you're satisfied then," Hap grinned. "And now you refuse to marry me after deliberately—"

"You surely don't believe I intended—"

"I don't know what you intended, but I know what's going to be," Hap put his arm about me in that masterful Hazard way.

The Hazards are a stubborn lot, and when they want a thing they get it. When I went back to my room, carefully shutting the door in Hap's face, the mystery was still a mystery. I couldn't see but that I had a badly damaged reputation, and I had promised Hap, with his mother's consent, to let him share it.

That night the mystery, instead of clearing, deepened. Jo disappeared! And not only that, but she had been taken away—forcibly abducted! Adams, the detective who was there to protect us, was found bound and gagged at the foot of the stairs leading to the tennis courts.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. WOODEN COACHES

On All Railroads Must be Discarded If Bills Are Passed.

Railways of the United States must face the problem of supplanting all their wooden passenger coaches with steel cars between June 1, 1915, and January 1, 1918, it is reported, if several bills pending in congress become laws.

The strong probability of such legislation being enacted has caused the committee on the relations of railroad operations to legislation of the American Railway association to issue a circular of inquiry to the carriers. Replies have been received from 255 companies operating 219,089 miles of road in the United States and having an aggregate of 55,872 passenger cars in use with 1,211 more under construction.

Of the total number of cars now in service 48,126 are of wooden construction, 2,399 have steel underframes and 5,347 are entirely of steel. Of the cars being built eighty-four are to be of wood, steel underframes are specified for 196, and 932 are to be all steel.

An estimate of the cost or replacement puts the number of cars that would have to be built at 48,126, the total cost of which would approximate $632,746,000, with an annual interest charge of $31,637,300. The charge to operating expense under the classification of accounts of Interstate Commerce Commission assuming a value of $4,000 on each car replaced, is fixed at $192,504,000.

MANY WITNESSES

Are Called in The Divorce Case of Robert Wheeler vs. Ora Wheeler.

The divorce case of Robert E. Wheeler vs. Ora Wheeler is on trial in the Jackson circuit court today. The case of Dora Flemings vs. the estate of Mary Jane Adams for an account was set for this afternoon, but the trial of the Wheeler case took more time than was expected and the second case was postponed.

In the Wheeler case, the plaintiff filed a complaint for a divorce and his wife filed a cross complaint asking for a decree and the custody of their child. A large number of witnesses were called by both parties and the case was hard fought from beginning to end. The trial was still in progress at 2:30 this afternoon.

Remains Arrived.

The remains of Mrs. Anna Melville, who died Monday at her home in Indianapolis, arrived this afternoon and were taken directly to Riverview cemetery for burial. Mrs. Melville was a sister of William Borders, formerly of this city and engineer on the B. & O. S-W. She moved from Seymour to Indianapolis.

Father of the Weather Bureau.

The father of the weather bureau service was Increase A. Lapham, a modest and retired but ripe scholar, who lived in Milwaukee. He was the first to note by telegraph the progress of the wind currents and storms and to predict their appearance in specified neighborhoods. On the strength of a weather dispatch from Omaha in 1863 or thereabouts he announced the first storm on Lake Michigan that ever was heralded twelve hours in advance of its arrival. The first work of the weather bureau was under his charge in Chicago. It was on the small beginnings of Dr. Lapham that the entire system of the signal service was based. Dr. Lapham died in 1875.
